

PATIENTS URGED TO STAY AT HOME

Friedmann Tells Them Not to Come to New York for Treatment.

TRIP WOULD BE USELESS

Soon, He Says, All Will Have Benefit of His Tuberculosis Cure.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
New York, March 20.—Dr. Frederick Franz Friedmann, the German bacteriologist, who is making tests of his serum for the cure of tuberculosis under the supervision of the government officials in this city, announced to-day that he could treat only those patients selected by the government experts, and urgently requested all others not to come to New York at present.

Dr. Friedmann said:
"I wish the press of the country would give the following advice to tuberculosis patients as coming from me:

"Do not come to New York at the present time. Stay at home and keep your patience. It will not be long before you have an opportunity of receiving my treatment. A trip to this city would consume your strength and vitality. So do not come, because I can treat only those sufferers who are countenanced by the government physicians."

Dr. S. S. Goldwater, superintendent of the Mount Sinai Hospital, where several patients have been inoculated with the Friedmann serum, announced to-day that the first official bulletin giving the progress of these patients will be given out to-morrow in Washington.

Dr. Friedmann gave a clinic at the hospital for deformities and joint diseases to-day, at which he treated thirty-five patients with his serum. All except one were children under sixteen years of age. The patients were suffering from tuberculosis of the joints.

After the clinic Dr. Friedmann announced that in about six hours all of the patients would have a high fever, which would last two or three days, and that after six days all pain would disappear. In fourteen days, he said, an improvement would be noticeable.

Preliminary Report To-Day

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Washington, March 20.—Dr. John F. Anderson, director of the Hygienic Laboratory of the Public Health Service, who is investigating the Friedmann tuberculosis vaccine for the government, returned to Washington to-day prepared to make a preliminary report on the Friedmann remedy and on Dr. Friedmann's operations in the United States.

This report probably will be made public to-morrow, after it is reviewed by Surgeon-General Blue. The surgeon-general had a long conference with Dr. Anderson to-day, at which the preliminary report was submitted.

Six skilled bacteriologists of the Public Health Service are experimenting with the Friedmann tuberculosis vaccine. They are propagating millions of the bacilli with which Dr. Friedmann says he routs the "white plague" from the culture furnished by the Berlin physician to Surgeon Anderson.

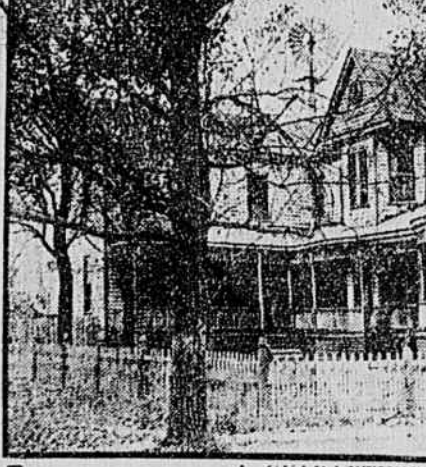

Inoculation of Uncle Sam's squad of monkeys with the Friedmann germ to test their efficacy, has not yet begun. Surgeon-General Blue is awaiting the laboratory tests.

ASHLAND NEWS NOTES

The death of Mr. Shepherd at Fredericksburg and the development of so much bad dogdom among the people of Ashland in common with people of other towns in the State, have become very much alarmed over the question of dogs running at large on the streets. Many complaints have been registered with the town authorities, and last night the Town Council passed an ordinance requiring all dogs running at large on streets to be muzzled.

Southall Closes Notable Career

Prominent Charlottesville Lawyer Dies at Home of Daughter in Lynchburg.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Charlottesville, Va., March 20.—S. Valentine Southall, one of the most prominent lawyers of the city, died at 3 o'clock this morning at the residence of his son-in-law, Rev. Joseph H. Dunn, in Lynchburg. The remains will reach Charlottesville at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, and the funeral will be held from Christ Episcopal Church at 4:30 o'clock. The interment will be made in Maplewood Cemetery.

Mr. Southall was the third son of Valentine Wood Southall, who was born in 1832 at "Westham," Gloucester County, Va., the old family seat, and his mother was a sister of Patrick Henry. His mother was Martha, daughter of James Powell Cooke, a direct descendant of Richard Cooke, first of the name in the State and member of the House of Burgesses in 1642. He was born in Charlottesville, and in 1852 began to practice law in Lynchburg. The next year he moved to Charlottesville and became his father's partner. In 1869 he represented the county in the Legislature and was chairman of the Committee of Courts in the House of Delegates. For many years he was president of the Miller Board and president of the Bank of Allegheny. A number of years ago he retired from the practice of law and devoted himself chiefly to literary pursuits. He was most active in all the political events of the State, and identified with the best interests of his country.

In 1868 Mr. Southall married Miss Emily Gordon Voss of Rappahannock County, and had four children. Three survive—W. Southall, Jr., of Emporia; Miss Mary Southall, all of this city, and Martha, wife of the Rev. J. B. Dunn.

In 1861 Mr. Southall entered the Confederate Army and served through the war to the surrender at Appomattox Courthouse, April 9, 1865. He was adjutant-general of artillery under General Lee, and long chief of artillery of Ewell's Corps during the last eight months of the war, surrendering with General Lee's command at Appomattox.

The stately residence of Mr. Southall on Park Street was originally built about 1810 by Miss Betty Cook, being even then quite a large brick edifice, which in 1850 became General Sheridan's headquarters while he occupied the town. In 1865 Mr. Southall came into possession of the property, and 1890 greatly added to the old building, making it one of the most handsome and improved places in the city.

Hobbs—Taylor.

Fredericksburg, Va., March 20.—A pretty marriage was solemnized at the First Baptist Church, Colonial Beach, when Miss Edith May Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Taylor, of Colonial Beach, became the bride of Rev. Virgil M. Hobbs, of the same place. Rev. George M. Connelly officiated. Miss Edna Taginor played the wedding music.

Prospective Clerks of Committees Anxious for Complete Reorganization of House.

BY P. H. MCGOWAN.

Washington, March 20.—More than ordinary interest attaches to the reorganization of the House next month for a number of reasons. There must be decided definitely whether or not any committees but those of Ways and Means, Rules, Accounts and Mileage will be appointed then, and whether the naming of all others shall go over until the tariff is out of the way in the House and sent over to the Senate.

If other committees than those just named are not organized until later, it will mean that a number of committee clerks who had expected to drop out in the near future will hold on for some time, and that their names will remain on the rolls until their successors are appointed. Of course, no successor can be appointed until a new chairman is named.

There will be a new chairman of the Committee on Agriculture to succeed Captain John Lamb, of Richmond, Henry M. Tyler, of Hunter County, Va., is now clerk, and will hold until Representative Lever or some one else is made chairman. In the event of Mr. Lever's selection the clerk's place probably will go to R. J. Wingard, of Lexington, S. C.

Representative Glass, of Virginia, who is expected to become chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, will be another man who will have a clerkship to offer.

If Ben Johnson is again placed at the head of the Committee on District of Columbia there will be no change, but should Representative Aiken, the next man on the list, be named in caucus, he also will name a clerk.

Ansbury, of Ohio, should be succeeded by Lever, of South Carolina, as chairman of the Committee on Education, will have a good place to offer, as will also Edwards, of Georgia, should he succeed Ansbury as chairman of Elections Committee, No. 1.

Sabath, of Illinois, if he succeeds Burnett, of Alabama, who, in turn, succeeds Sheppard, of Texas, who went to the Senate after Bailey resigned, is another man who will have a clerkship.

The appointment of a clerk is of no consequence in itself, the interesting feature being that if no committees are named now except Ways and Means, Rules, Mileage and Accounts, the present clerk will hold on for several months with good pay and nothing to do. In the meantime, the others, who expect to become clerks with the beginning of the extra session, are anxious that something be done to get them appointed for all the committees to be named, and for work to proceed so that their own positions might be made certain and the increased pay begin.

The men who are serving until their successors are named are not anxious for the committees as a whole to be organized, while the fellows on the outside are awaking with impatience the time when they go a step higher on the congressional pay ladder.

One More Day Remains of Big Vote Offer

Secure Subscriptions Now and Get the Benefit of Biggest Vote Schedule of Contest

Here it is Friday, and though in a way "to-morrow" never comes, yet to-morrow will be Saturday, marking the close of the big vote offer. The office of the contest department, 413 Times-Dispatch Building, will be open until 10 P. M. Any subscriptions mailed Saturday night will be counted for the big vote.

Be sure to get those subscription either into the contest rooms before 10 P. M. or into the post-office before midnight to-morrow.

GET THE SUBSCRIPTIONS NOW.

These last hours of the big vote find every one excited, and if you make your request for a subscription in your favor just at this time, you will find all your friends ready to listen to you and to oblige you at once.

There will be no more delays. No more saying "call again." You can show them too well how important it is that they should give you all the help they can right now.

WHY YOU SHOULD WORK TO-DAY.

When you begin to feel a little tired on your rounds to-morrow you must say to yourself, "After to-day I will have to do more work to secure the same result." That thought will spur you on to make a better effort.

Another stimulating thought is that every other earnest candidate is going to make a point of seeing as many people as he possibly can before to-morrow night.

If you fail to see your friends there will be no lack of those who will get to them with a request for a subscription. Perhaps this request will be made in a very pressing way, and when you go Monday to try for a year's subscription from some one whom you know well, he will already have given his subscription to your rival.

MERIT WINS.

The greatest merit a candidate can have is to be persevering and energetic. It is precisely this that is going to bring you out at the top when the game is over on April 12.

MANY DROPPING OUT.

Those who are deciding that they have not persistence to keep it up are dropping from the ranks. This is pretty good for those who remain. All the best candidates find fewer and fewer opponents; but, then, those who are ranged against them are of the same calibre as themselves, and must be reckoned with seriously.

When you see that there are only a half dozen in your district who are making steady gains you will feel that your chances of winning are splendid. So they will be. At the close there will hardly be more than that number of really active candidates in each district.

These half dozen will be picked men and women who are of the right material for success. The great point at present, before you can be fully aware of the thinning of the ranks, is to keep right along, hoeing your own row, not worrying about the other fellow.

For the present do not even stop to think of the end of the contest. Every minute now is too precious. You must go out at a run and get every subscription you can. You will rest easy Sunday if you do your very best Saturday.

THINK OF EVERY PROSPECT.

Think of them now. Think of all the subscriptions that have been promised to you later on.

Think of those who might have promised you had you applied to them. Go to your friends to-day. Tell them the great importance of prompt action. Show them that the subscription they give you to-day will be worth more to you than if they postponed until next week or any other time during the contest.

Explain to them that it may not only mean extra votes for you, but may make all the difference between your being merely one of the prize-winners or the first grand prize winner.

There are a number of good reasons for your promptness in seeking subscribers.

One of these you have already thought of. The subscriptions count higher in votes this week than they will again.

Another excellent reason is that there are more people to-day who have not yet been asked to subscribe for The Times-Dispatch than there will be to-morrow.

The field certainly does grow a little smaller from day to day. You want to be a reaper in that field, and not merely a gleaner, following where others have made a harvest.

ANOTHER REASON.

One more reason among many. You cannot possibly tell what may turn up to-morrow to prevent your seeking that subscriber. Something may interfere with your going. Something may call him away. If you go to-day and your friend is not in there is still to-morrow left for the second call.

Now, while you are able to do it, go after that subscriber. You will be glad you did when you count up the votes.

CONTEST LASTS ONLY THREE WEEKS.

One of the best features of this contest, so far as the candidates are concerned, is that it is so soon over. You do not have to toll along in quest of your final success for months. Just three weeks after the end of the big vote the contest itself will be a thing of the past.

So short a period has been set in the full belief that it is better for the candidates to run a short, quick race than to drag along a long time.

In doing this it is expected that all will realize that it is better for a driving campaign that shall win on April 12. If you have a journey covering many miles on foot, you will not imagine that you will arrive any sooner by starting out at top speed and keeping that up until you are ready to drop. But if the goal is a hundred-yard dash, you would make a grievous error to save your breath for the last five yards.

MAKE EVERY MINUTE COUNT.

Now, this contest is little more than a hundred-yard dash. You are going to have plenty of time to rest up after it is all over; but while it lasts, get up steam. Plunge straight ahead, every muscle doing the utmost, and then when the goal is really almost within reach—slide, Casey, slide! Get there somehow—but be there first.

Be prompt in the matter of bringing in your business. Saturday evening is bound to be crowded in any case. Almost every one has just a few secured at the last minute with which to run up to the contest department. The management will be glad to see you then with the rest, but it will be particularly glad if you have brought in the bulk of your business a day or two beforehand.
